

Written Component

Water: In Focus

This is a majestic picture of water in Istanbul, Turkey. Water is everywhere. It's not only flowing through water a system near your home, but it's a source rippling internationally. This water that you see is powering a city. It is the secret behind its beauty and power.

Although it faces many conflicts, water still remains untouchable beyond compare.

Every hour, water is supporting, whether it's animals, humans, climate, or landscape. These birds soaring amongst the fierce waves of the sea are being maintained. It keeps the largest of countries running all the way down to the smallest of sea urchins.

Water is the key to life and survival. It's what keeps us going in our daily lives. Water has a purpose, and that's why it's been flowing for so many decades. It shouldn't be wasted and tainted, but preserved and shared with one another. Water belongs to each and every one of us.

Water is all around; it just depends on where you are.